

Centre for Sufi Studies, Resources & Publication (CSSRP)

A progress on networking:

A Harvard student namely Pei-ling Huang visited at University of Sufism and Modern Sciences (USMS), Bhitshah on Saturday at 11:00am. She was warmly welcome by Coordinator, CSSRP and also a cultural gift “dupata” was presented to her with auspices of worthy Vice Chancellor, Prof. Dr. Parveen Munshi.

She was briefed about the progress of Centre for Sufi Studies, Resources and Publications (CSSRP) an institution established for research and publication on Sufi philosophy and practices. Her research focuses the spiritual music (Shah-Jo-Raag) at the shrine of Shah Abdul Latif Bhattai. She is the first woman who has learned Shah-Jo-Raag, and very often she performs Vai at the shrine along with other male Faqeers. She said girls must learn about spiritual-music because in her research sample size women are in very low figure. She said the girls studying in different professional degrees will be given lectures spiritual music at the University after seeking necessary consent.

